EPA Annual Meeting

The UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development committed to “reduce the negative impacts of chemicals which are hazardous for human health and the environment.” Issues related to life cycle of chemicals including chemical management at source, substitution of hazardous chemicals, risk management, circular economy, and supply chain communication are highly concerned by industry and government. This conference in Taipei will focus on global chemical management goals and policies, inviting experts from the US, EU, South Korea, Vietnam and Taiwan to participate in the discussion and share their experiences on implementation, strategic approaches to chemical management and future plans regarding sound chemical management.

Welcome all stakeholders from government institutions, industry, NGOs and academic .
